

Summer Reading, 2016

Come May, students sometimes ask for summer reading suggestions. Here are some of our current lists – books that have made big impressions on us, or that we've recently really liked, or that we're planning to read ourselves this summer. Enjoy!

Nicholas Baer

Peter Osborne, The Politics of Time
Wendy Brown, Undoing the Demos
Charles Bambach, Dilthey, Heidegger and the Crisis of Historicism
Jacques Ranciere, The Politics of Aesthetics
Rebecca Comay, Mourning Sickness

Emiliano Diaz

Gore Vidal, Creation
V.F. Cordova, How It Is
Paul Ricoeur, The Course of Recognition
Richard K. Morgan, Altered Carbon

Casey Haskins

Douglas Rushkoff, Present Shock: When Everything Happens Now
Rebecca Solnit, The Faraway Nearby
Irvin Yalom, When Nietzsche Wept: A Novel of Obsession
David Abram, The Spell of the Sensuous: Perception and Language in a More-Than-Human World
Philippa Perry, How to Stay Sane

Morris Kaplan

James Baldwin, Another Country
Toni Morrison, Beloved
Hannah Arendt, Eichmann in Jerusalem: A Report on the Banality of Evil
Judith Butler, Parting Ways: Jewishness and the Critique of Zionism
Michel Foucault, Wrongdoing, Truth-telling

Jennie Uleman

Maggie Nelson, The Argonauts
Andrew Cole, The Birth of Theory
Linda Alcoff, The Future of Whiteness
Doris Lessing, The Golden Notebook
G.W. Leibniz, Writings on China, trans. Daniel J. Cook and Henry Rosemont, Jr.