The collection is stored in a secure room, accessible only by certain library staff members. The range of subjects is extensive, with a large number of art books of many disciplines from the 19th and 20th centuries.

Oversize call number range: AP2 .H36 – Z8811 .B28

Language: The materials are in English, German, French, Italian, and Japanese.

Acquisition Information: Original provenance is unknown for the majority of the titles. Some more recent acquisitions include donations from College staff, and purchased art books.

Access Restrictions: Special Collections is free, and accessible to purchase affiliates and independent researchers by appointment. They must fill out a form and schedule a time to visit, and be supervised by Reference, Special Collections and Archives Librarian Joseph Swatski. Some materials may not be suitable for handling, at the discretion of staff.

Copyright: The materials in the Library are not copyrighted to the college.

History: Purchase Library began accepting donations upon its opening in 1971. Throughout the 1970s, the library accrued a number of rare and valuable books to support the focus of Purchase College as a state school dedicated to the humanities. As the defacto art school of the SUNY system, the college attracted many donations of art books. Its strong music, literature, and natural science programs also attracted donations in these subject categories.

Scope and Content: Special Collections is diverse, with most representation in the subjects of art, history, and literature. Many books are first editions, and some are signed. 57 titles were published before the 20th century, and 120 were published from 1900-1950. Many contemporary titles are artist books, by modern artists from Ida Applebroog to Janet Zweig. These books are being actively curated and acquired by Art Historian Kim Detterbeck.
