While at Purchase, I was a volunteer mental health worker at New York Hospital and I worked on campus as a peer counselor and hotline worker.

While getting my masters and doctorate, I volunteered at GMHC, as a group therapist for AIDS patients and their carepartners, and at Body Positive as a group therapist and supervisor for HIV positive support groups.

After receiving my doctorate, I worked as a school psychologist in a special education preschool in Long Island. I began building my private practice in the evenings. I was later hired as the Director of Support Services at Body Positive in NYC.

A year later, I worked half-time as a psychologist at SUNY College of Optometry, doing psychological and neuropsychological assessments with adults and children, and half-time private practice. I also began my post-doctoral studies at NYU. A year later, I went into full-time private practice. I continue to practice psychotherapy and psychoanalysis in NYC, and I am an Adjunct Clinical Supervisor at Yeshiva University. My specialty areas are: gay men, couples, HIV/AIDS.
